

Housing and Public Health Workshops

A series of workshops held at:

Department of Health West Midlands, 5 St Philip's Place, Birmingham, B3 2PW

These workshops will equip those working in housing and public health to make the most of reforms in both sectors and to maximise the potential for collaboration to the benefit of our communities. They build on recent research, guidance and a learning event focused on the interrelationship between housing and health - outputs from this event are available at www.wmpho.org.uk/lfph.

Workshop 1 Housing and Health Intelligence
Monday 14th November 2011 1.30pm – 4.30pm

Workshop 2 Strategic and Spatial Planning
Thursday 15th December 2011 1.30pm – 4.30pm

Workshop 3 Improving Community Health
Wednesday 18th January 2012 1.30pm – 4.30pm

Workshop participants will:

- Learn about current and emerging developments in both sectors; the opportunities and challenges
- Understand how to make the most of housing and health intelligence to inform local policy and practice
- Appreciate how to integrate health in strategic housing and spatial planning activity locally
- Be aware of who does what and why within the local area, and how to make the most of relationships
- Gain ideas and inspiration from others who have been successful in improving health through housing

Workshops will be of interest to:

- Local authorities: officers in housing strategy, environmental health, planning policy, and elected members
- Registered providers and council landlords: senior management and board members
- Public health practitioners
